

ABSTRACT

An immersion nozzle for continuous casting of steel supplies molten steel into a mold. At least a part of the immersion nozzle is formed of a refractory having a desulfurizing ability. A method for continuous casting of steel employs the immersion nozzle to supply molten steel into a mold using the immersion nozzle for continuous casting.